

SOCIETY

One of the pleasantest and most unique Hallowe'en functions this season was the reception given last evening by the young ladies of Engleside in return for the reception given by the young men a week ago. The affair, which was held in the spacious parlors and lanais of Engleside, was attended by over a hundred guests and was pronounced by all a most decided success.

After the guests had assembled the lights suddenly went out and were replaced by a dim, greenish radiance which has a most sepulchral effect. At the same moment a sheeted form was seen descending the stairway. This ghost seated herself at the piano and soon a troop of ghosts of varied face and garb descended and executed a most weird instrumental piece on combs. After this the roll was called, such distinguished personages as Cleopatra, Portia, Marie Antoinette and Queen Kaahumanu responding to their names. These famous ghosts then announced that the spirits of the past would tell the events of the future and the guests were conducted by ghostly guides to various parts of the building where fortunes were told in varied ways. There was an Egyptian sphinx who gave the glad hand, an old witch who could tell whether you were to be a bachelor, old maid, married man or woman, or a widower or widow, and there was an oracle who gave all sorts of peeps into the future for ten cents in order to raise money for the Experience Social.

One of the most novel attractions was provided by four ghosts, two of them with ghastly skeleton heads, who sat behind a curtain in which was a row of silts. Through these the unsuspecting victims thrust their hands to grasp "a piece of lava from Pele's home," or a "crystal from the deep," the former being a hot potato and the latter a lump of ice. After all had had an opportunity to handle these interesting relics a committee consisting of Mr. Arthur Hall and Mr. Homer Nishwitz presented the prizes for excellence as ghosts, first prize going to Dr. Myers and second to Miss Frances Lawrence. Dr. Hall received a bouquet that looked suspiciously like a cauliflower head and Miss Lawrence was decked with a lei, the like of which Hawaii nei has never seen before for it was a most artistic creation of carrots, radishes and other vegetables.

A very unique invitation has appeared for the At Home of the Kilohana Art League, which may be interpreted to read as follows:

At Home, three thirty o'clock
Saturday afternoon, November 5, 1904.
The Pavilion, Alexander Young Hotel.
"Bushido, the Soul of Japan."
The long residence of the Rev. Mr. Wadman in Japan especially qualifies him to treat of that subtle ethical and patriotic spirit which is signified by the word "Bushido."
